

CASE STUDY: GET SKILLED ACCESS

What was the objective?

Get Skilled Access, a start-up working with organisations to normalise disability and improve accessibility, needed resources to support interactive workshops led by Paralympians with their clients. They also required authoring and development of online learning to complement these workshops.

How did we do it?

We designed both a high-level agenda Get Skilled Access could provide to their clients and a detailed agenda for facilitators to deliver the workshops with confidence. This was supported by a slide deck and a guide for activities – so facilitators could make the workshop more hands-on and interactive. We also created 90 minutes of online learning using Hype, featuring ‘click and reveal’ technology and lots of user-friendly visuals to deliver the Get Skilled Access message.

How was it integrated and what were the results?

We set up and integrated Get Skilled Access’s online learning into their Learning Management System, which clients are using with students to support workshops or as a standalone option for education around disability and accessibility. Feedback on the content has been positive with its clear, straightforward tone working well with big retailers and corporates.
